

Logan Township (Gloucester County)

A public meeting was held on September 9, 2003 at the request of officials representing Logan Township residents. The meeting was held to discuss the residents' concern over their home heating oil tanks. When the homes were built, approximately 10-20 years ago, the builder chose to place above ground heating oil tanks in the ground. Since these tanks were not meant to be placed in the ground, they were not able to withstand the underground conditions and several of the tanks leaked causing contamination problems throughout the neighborhood. The residents that attended the meeting were able to obtain pertinent information about funding and remediation assistance. Several of the tanks in the area have been removed and the case is currently being handled by the Southern Field Office.
